The award, which is voted annually by the Sire Stakes Board of Trustees, is based only on performances in races for New Jersey-sired horses, including New Jersey Sire Stakes events and other major stakes for New Jersey-sired horses. In addition to the top honor, Artistic Fella, a son of Pacific Fella, was chosen NJSS three-year-old pacing colt of the year.

Meadowlands Paddock

This architectural rendering shows what the renovated back paddock at The Meadowlands will look like when it is completed near the end of the 2007 summer meet. The first phase of the $10.5 million project, which included renovations to the existing structure that opened in 1976, was ready for the recently completed fall meet. The second phase, when completed, will accommodate 13 races, six more than the current paddock.

President's Message

by Tom Luchento

As we begin 2007, we already know that this year will be critical to the future of horse racing in general and standardbred racing, in particular.

That's because of two major issues that have been in the spotlight as the old year ended.

One is the question of whether VLT slot machines will become a reality at racetracks in New Jersey anytime soon. The other concerns the significant change by the N. J. Sports & Exposition Authority in the use of the Meadowlands simulcast signal with an exclusive contract starting January 5.

The VLT slot issue has been raging for some time, as our neighboring states developed, approved and installed the machines at their racetracks. We, in New Jersey, have been able to keep pace with other racing jurisdictions because of the 4-year, $86-million casino supplement to our purses.

But that deal stops at the end of this year, and some new revenue source will be needed for the horse racing industry to survive.

As the year 2006 drew to a close, Governor Jon Corzine told the news media that he is "more open" to video slots at the racetracks. The Governor has also acknowledged that the concept of VLTs is becoming attractive as a way to raise revenue for the state.

Prominent members of the State Legislature, including Senate President and former Governor Richard J. Codey, have been outspoken in their support of VLT slots for a long time.

Here are some important reasons that the VLT issue is getting hotter in the State Capitol:

- The State needs huge sums of money, into the billions of dollars, to balance the budget again;
- VLT machines at the tracks could produce as much as a billion dollars;

- Any effort to sell the Meadowlands and Monmouth Park to private interests would result in a higher sale price if VLT machines were guaranteed to the prospective buyers;

- More and more state lawmakers support the idea to help the horse racing industry survive the fierce competition for horses from tracks in neighboring Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware, where slots are operating;

- The casino supplement funds, that have enabled New Jersey to keep pace with other states, will run out at the end of 2007, threatening the future of the Garden State's horse racing and breeding industry.

There are no details of any specific VLT proposal as yet, despite what you may read in various publications, hear on radio or see on television. Nothing is finalized, not the number of machines that would be installed, nor the percentage of the revenue that would go to purses.

We are researching the standardbred horse industry's financial needs and will be meeting with Corzine Administration officials and state legislators to come up with the most accurate numbers that will keep New Jersey number one among harness racing states, and the Meadowlands as the number one harness track in the country.

The other issue concerns the Sports Authority's decision to award an exclusive contract to TVG for the audio-visual display and account wagering for all races at the Meadowlands and Monmouth Park. It is interesting to note that most racetracks are going the exclusive route.

For the previous five years, there was no exclusive deal and several other companies shared the ability to show Meadowlands races.

There's an old saying that if it ain't broke, don't fix it! The license agreement to simulcast our races worked fine for years.

This action by the Sports Authority was very disappointing, to say the least. It also was improper, in that the Authority never included the SBOA, as the duly constituted representative of the standardbred horsepeople who race at the Meadowlands, in any part of the process leading up to and including the award of the exclusive contract.

The SBOA believes it had a right to be part of the process and that the decision was made without our association's consent.

The reason that is so important is that many millions of horse owners, breeders, trainers and drivers, racing fans and bettors who do not watch TVG will not be able to view Meadowlands races.

In particular, we are concerned about those people who subscribe to watch and bet on Meadowlands races on RTN (the Race Track Network of Roberts Communications). If they can no longer do so, the handle will suffer and the quality of racing will decline.

We have been told that TVG will sell the signal to the other companies, but we have no assurances or guarantees that will be the case.

As a result, the SBOA intends to meet with TVG representatives to get answers to our questions and about how millions of people not now watching TVG will be able to watch and wager on the Meadowlands races.

And we intend to do our very best to protect the interest of the people in the standardbred industry in New Jersey.

I also want to take this opportunity to wish Chris McErlean well in his new position at Penn National Gaming. It has been a pleasure working with him at The Meadowlands over the years. In all our dealings with him, you could always count on him to keep his word.
